

Disclaimer

The information provided by me on this site is for informational and educational purposes only. No therapeutic or professional relationship is established by your review of this material and use of this site. No diagnosis, treatment or specific therapeutic advice is being provided to you. This site is not intended to be a replacement for medical, behavioral, or mental health care, advice, diagnosis or treatment. There is no intent for me or this site to offer specific psychological advice to any person.

The information contained on this site should only be used by you in consultation with a qualified mental health professional that you engage for consultation and/or treatment.

Kay Colbert, LCSW, PLLC has made every effort to provide information that is correct and compatible with the standards generally accepted at the time of publication. No guarantees or warranties are made with regard to any information provided by me on this site. I take no responsibility for websites hyperlinked to this site and such hyperlinking does not imply any relationship with me or endorsement by me of the linked sites.